How to make a mla paper look longer

Need to make a paper longer but out of ideas? Forget fudging the margins and font or even the legendary "period trick." These 6 tips will make your paper longer—and better! First and foremost, know that your professor most likely knows about all of the "easy" tricks and can spot 'em! Changing the font, changing the margins, doing the "period trick," and tons of other sneaky ways to make your paper longer have all been done before and then some. Since you need to make your paper longer, not worse, skip the easy stuff and focus on the content. Add additional quotations to support your examples. If your paper is good, you'll have examples to support your thesis. To make your paper even better (and longer), make sure you have at least one quotation from the text—if not more—to support your examples. (And be careful about citing your quotations accurately, too.) Add an additional example to each paragraph/argument/idea. If you can't add more quotations, add more examples to support your position. Think about more ways to make your point by showing—not just telling—the reader. Make sure each paragraph has a topic sentence, supporting evidence, and a concluding/transition sentence. Of course, each paragraph should have more than just these three sentences, but you might be surprised at how easily each can be left off—and how much longer your paper can become if you go back through and insert missing items where needed. Think about the arguments against your thesis—and then make sure you've addressed those points. Sure, you may have good arguments for your position. But what would someone holding the opposite position say? And what would you say in response? Making sure those responses are already included in your paper is a great way to make sure you've covered all the bases...and a great way to add some length if your paper is a little shorter than you'd like. Confirm and reconfirm that you have a strong introduction, thesis statement, and conclusion. Although you may be focused on the body of your paper and the evidence supporting your position, having a strong intro, thesis, and conclusion are important, too. Making sure your paper starts with a bang (good intro), has a solid foundation to stand on (strong thesis), and leaves the reader convinced (stellar conclusion) is a great way to make sure your paper is all-around better—and longer! Design by Yoor Kim//NetflixWhen you're writing a school paper after researching and typing for what feels like ages, but you still haven't reached your teacher's required page count, it's normal to feel frustrated. Maybe you get a little creative and play Microsoft Word gymnastics with different fonts and spacing, or become super expressive with your descriptions. There's also a chance you missed something on the assignment rubric, or overlooked the opportunity to include more quotes from trusted sources. You might even be able to load up on a few more examples for your argument, easily boosting the word count with additional research. Still a couple pages behind the limit? Don't worry. Below, we have over 20 tips to help you hit that page requirement. 1. Make sure you included everything on the rubric. If you forgot a whole section focusing on the counter argument, that could be the reason why your paper is a couple pages shorter than needed. 2. Load up on transitional phrases. Your paper isn't long enough, therefore it may be necessary to add some transitional phrases because they take up space. On the other hand, this could make your paper really wordy, however, it may be necessary. See what I did there? College Classes You Won't Believe Actually Exist3. Spell out your numbers. There are four editorial styles — AP, APA, MLA, and Chicago. Each one has a different rule for spelling out numbers, which can work out in your favor. For instance, in APA, you write out all numbers under 10. So a one-character "7" becomes a five-character "seven." In MLA, you spell out all numbers at the beginning of a sentence, and all simple numbers (those that are one or two words). Make sure to check the assignment rubric to see what style your paper should be written in!4. Ditch the contractions. Honestly, you probably should not even be using contractions in a formal essay, so if you are filling up your paper with "don't," "won't," and "can't," switch them out for "do not," "will not," and "cannot." 5. Use numerous examples. Make sure to do extensive research on your essay topic and come up with at least 2-3 examples for every argument presented. One example might seem like enough, but adding a couple more points improves your paper and boosts its word count.How to Nail the College Application Process6. Add quotes. Including quotes, whether they be from a book, news article, or trusted source, helps strengthen and validate the point you're making in a paper. But you can't just drop a quotation without context. Introducing, writing out, and properly unpacking a quote can add value — and length — to your essay.7. Start getting really descriptive about everything. How illustrative can you get about the evolution of electricity, you ask? Well, the answer is: Very. The howling wind gushed passed Benjamin Franklin at 30 miles per hour on that cold, rainy night, pulling the string of his kite taught as it fought to stay in the sky and sent his grey hair flying up in the sky like silvery wisps. 8. Try to make your header longer. If possible, of course. Some teachers clearly state what information needs to be included in the header. But if there's no guideline, add what you can within reason — I'm not sure your teacher is going to appreciate your TikTok or Insta handle listed on the page. 9. Have someone proofread. Getting another pair of eyes to read your paper might reveal some areas in need of work. Maybe you need to elaborate a bit more on a certain argument, or include a quote to strengthen an example. Gifts That'll Make College Experience 10x Better!0. Revisit your introduction paragraph. Sometimes, an introduction is easiest to write after the paper has been written. Having already presented and thoroughly discussed the argument in the essay's body paragraphs, you have a more concrete understanding of what direction the paper takes. There might be some information or ideas you can add into the intro, to better set up the paper's points.11. Make your spacing larger. Your teacher probably won't be able to tell the difference between double spacing and 2.5 spacing. *fingers crossed*12. While you're at it, expand the spacing between the characters. Yes, I'm talking between each and every letter. 13. Raise the font size from 12pt to 12.5pt. Nobody has to know! 14. Make all periods and commas 14pt. It sounds tedious, but simply command-f and search for the period, that way you can change all of them at once.15. Put extra space around your (super long and bolded) title. It needs some space to shine and breathe, obsv. 16. Change the font. You can't get too crazy or else your teacher will call you out, so you stick with something super similar to Times New Roman, but slightly bigger, like Bookman Old Style. However some teachers specify a certain font in the paper's assignment requirements — in the case, don't try to switch things up. The SAT Will Be Digital and Shorter by 2024!7. Reverse outline. After you've finished penning your essay, read it through and write an outline on what you have written so far. This strategy can reveal some paragraphs in need of further development. If you notice one super long paragraph, try breaking the ideas down into separate paragraphs. This might bump the page count up a bit, and give you the opportunity to include a few more transition sentences. 18. Make your margins bigger. You have to be careful about the left and right margins, and the top can be tricky. But the bottom margin, you can practically make it as big as you want. And then you can...19. Add a fancy footer with page numbers. Obviously (hopefully), your teacher will appreciate your attention to detail and presentation.20. Add a header with the title of your paper to every single page. Just in case your teacher forgets what your paper is about. You only want to help. 21. Make a separate cover page. Technically, the rubric didn't say it couldn't count as page one. You finished writing your paper and need to submit it soon. However, the number of pages does not correspond to the criteria provided by your professor. You ask yourself how to make an essay look longer? Fortunately, it is possible by using the following tricks.Need editing help with your essay?Our expert editors can help you!Order nowYou may use a larger font. In case your professor did not give you exact specifications about the font which you can use, you should choose some popular one like Courier New, Cambria, Arial or Bangla Sangam MN. Nonetheless, try not to exaggerate. We do not advise you to use, for instance, Lucida Handwriting or Arial Black, because your professor will see that you are trying to make your paper look longer by applying a larger one.You can slightly adjust the font size. For example, if your professor asks to use 11 pt., to make paper longer, apply 11.1, 11.2, 11.3, 11.5 size. Compare the adjustments and apply the one which is not too eye-catching.If you wonder how to make an essay longer period trick, just extend the size of commas and periods. To do it, you should press control+F on the keyboard. You will see a window with find and replace function. All you need is to select all the 11 pt commas and periods and then change them to the 12 pt.You could also change the spacing between your paper lines. In case the single or double spacing is required, follow the next steps: open "Format" and "Paragraph". You will see the line "Spacing". In this case select "Multiple". Then just enter 1.1 or 2.1 in the box.You should scale down the right margin. To reduce it without noticing, change it only by a quarter. For example, if your professor requires the margin size of 1.5 cm, reduce it to 0.9 cm. In order to do it, click "Format" and then "Document". Enter 0.9 in the box next to "Right". This tip can help you to extend your paper without any noticeable changes. Do not reduce the left margin. As the documents are always justified on the left margin, it helps to create a visible change.5 More Tips on How to Make an Essay LongerHere are some pieces of advice from experienced essay writers and students:Try to increase the bottom margin by a quarter. In the "Document" find the box which is next to "Bottom" and enter 1.25. In case it is too visible, change it for instance to 1.15. With this useful tip, you can make your paper look longer without noticing.Expand spacing between the words. It will also increase the number of pages in your paper. Open "Font" and then "Advanced" window. In the "Expanded" enter 1.6 into the box. It is next to the button "By".Increase the header of your essay. Include your name, the title, the number of the course, the date, the name of your teacher, number of your student ID card and email. Include all necessary information which may extend your header. Do not forget to use double spacing.The title of your paper should be placed on the line under the header. You should put it in the center. You can also expand the font size. Check whether you use double space between the title and the header as well as between the title and the first paragraph.By adding a footer page which includes numbers your composition will look longer as well.When you know everything about period tips which would make your essay longer, now it would be useful to learn how to make an essay longer with words.If you need to enter a number and it is less than ten, then spell it out. For instance, spell out two instead of writing the numeral. This tip helps to make your paper longer. Moreover, it is professional because spelling out the numerals is required in formal writing.It is forbidden to use shortenings in formal writing. So this is another possibility to extend your essay by writing them out. Instead of "won't" use "will not", or instead of "don't" - "do not".Replace specific pronouns with names. For instance, "Barack Obama and Donald Trump" instead of "they". However, do not exaggerate.You should use a lot of descriptions in your capstone paper. While providing any new information, extend its description and give definitions, specific dates, and numbers, names of persons.Make a short conclusion after each paragraph. Summarize the points and give your opinion if necessary.You don't need to ask anymore how to make a paper longer. Just use these methods and you will be surprised how the number of pages increases in a few clicks.If you do not Have Time for Writing Essay, EssayVikings Can Do it for YouNeed editing help with your essay?Our expert editors can help you!Order nowOur research paper writing service helps thousands of students to do their assignments.
